State Department Announces No "Hasty Action" Will Be Taken in Regard to Submarine Situation.

VON BERNSTORFF HAS NOTHING TO GIVE OUT

German Ambassador Declines to Discuss Document; Embassy View Is It Means Return to "Cruiser Warfare."

(By Evening Herald Leased Wire) Washington, May 4.—While the attitude of the American government towards the affair, some cabinet members indicated that the German assurance of pronouncing no "hasty action" and that submarine relations would not be broken unless the order to submarine commanders was violated and American lives endangered.

When the cabinet meeting today agreed to discuss the matter, Lansing said all inquiries with this regard should be made before any decision is reached at all at the time.

At the state department after its cabinet meeting, it was stated that no "hasty action" would be taken on the submarine note and that in view of its length and the necessity of discussing it carefully, it was "impossible that any decision would be reached before next week."

Later Secretary Lansing said it was possible that the United States might ask Germany for an official copy of the previous orders to submarine commanders which never have been communicated to the state department, so that they might be compared with the new orders described in the note.

Mr. Lansing would not discuss the note except to say that mistake in submarine warfare were not admitted and to reiterate that the United States was willing to discuss the conduct of submarine warfare with Germany after the latter had communicated the present practice.

COUNT VON BERNSTORFF MAINTAINS STRICT SILENCE

New York, May 4.—Count Leopold von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, received the note by telegraph from the Gaylord wireless station in his suite at the Ritz Carlton hotel. He refused to discuss it.

It is known that the German submarine view is that the note is all for which the United States asked, or that the note is a return to what has been termed "cruiser warfare"—that is, the operation of submarines as cruisers intercepting commerce with coast and search. The embryo view is that no such an order as no mention was made in the question of armament, it is not a comprising feature.

CONGRESS RECEIVES NEWS; QUITEMA: NO COMMENT MADE

Washington, May 4.—President Wilson and the cabinet went carefully over the German note as transmitted in news dispatches from Berlin.

A first reading that it was unsatisfactory was somewhat leagued by the text of the new orders to submarine commanders although it was foreseen that the reference to immunity for "merchant ships recognized by international law" might admit of some dispute of interpretation.

So much depends upon words and their shades of meaning involved in translation of German to English that no decision can be attempted until the original text is in the president's hands.

Ambassador Edward evaded today that he had started it on the cable last night. It ought to be in Wash-

Belief Is Expressed Widely That Status Quo Demanded by America Has Been Established by Berlin Government

(By Evening Herald Leased Wire) El Paso (Tex.) Herald.—Germany presents a strong case and her opinions of our government are not wholly unmerited, but in view of the attitude of President Wilson it is useless for Germany to continue her insistence upon our compelling England to observe the law, therefore a local peace is inevitable.
